EXTRA POLICE IN 12 MONTHS SAYS KNIGHT

A new police district headquarters at Altona North may be established within the next 12 months, Mr. Alex Knight, M.L.C. for Melbourne West, said last week.

Mr. Knight said he hoped the cost of setting up the new headquarters would be provided in the next State Budget.

He said the project will bring about 70 extra police into the western suburbs.

Mr. Knight's announcement follows a deputation to the Chief Secretary, Mr. Rossiter, last week.

The deputation comprised members of Parliament, councillors and municipal officers from Footscray, Sunshine, Werribee and Altona.

Mr. Rossiter was told that there was concern about the delay in establishing the new headquarters.

It was proposed originally to provide for the planning of the project in this year's budget and the cost of the building in the 1974-5 budget.

Mr. Knight said Mr. Rossiter assured the deputation that this timetable would be reviewed.

The deputation was told that the project would proceed at the earliest opportunity.

The new headquarters will be built on land reserved for the purpose at the rear of the Altona North high school.

An early estimated cost was $600,000.

Proposed staffing is a chief superintendent, deputy superintendent, chief inspector, four inspectors, a senior sergeant, 25-30 uniformed police, a 22-member crime car squad, six policewomen and 4-6 CIB members.

Mr. Knight said the deputation also protested about the proposal to attach Williamstown to the South Melbourne police district.

This was recommended in the report on the Victoria Police Force by British expert Colonel Sir Eric St. Johnstone.

Another matter raised by the deputation was the failure to man some police stations 24-hours-a-day.

Mr. Rossiter was told that police were being sent on patrol duty and leaving stations unmanned for extended periods.

These stations include Altona, Williamstown and Yarraville.

Churches join fight against new estate

Altona churches have joined the fight to prevent the Housing Commission going ahead with plans to accommodate 8000 people on a new estate at Paisley, Altona North.

A public meeting called by the Altona Council of Churches, recently condemned the proposed estate for its proximity to the PRA refinery complex and the ghetto-type community it would create.

The meeting of 30 residents at Altona North technical school, resolved to oppose the Paisley project on the grounds that:

- Its population density would be two and a half to three times that of the surrounding residential area.

- The project was conceived as an isolated self-contained entity which would tend to create psychological and social barriers within the wider Altona community.

- In the 70s, with heightened awareness of pollution and environmental control, it was difficult to understand why the Housing Commission should seek to house a significantly sized community so close to as huge an industrial complex as PRA.

The meeting agreed to send letters to the Housing Commission, Board of Works, State and Federal parliamentarians, the Building and Construction Workers' Union and Altona Council.

A committee comprising A. Green, M. P. Cooper, K. Berrie, D.

Cahill and P. B. Robson was appointed to consider what further action might be taken.

The meeting was addressed by Cr. Bill Sommers of Altona Council and Rev. Fr. D. Cahill spoke on behalf of the Altona Council of Churches.

Apologies were received from the Housing Commission and the Board of Works, who were also invited to address the meeting.

Mayoral ball a sellout

Altona's 1973 mayoral ball at Shirley Park Reception, Altona North, last Friday night, was a knockout success.

About 280 residents attended the function which was a sellout well before the event.

Guests included the mayors and mayoresses of Footscray and Broadmeadows, the shire president of Werribee and his wife, local members of Parliament, Messrs. Alex Knight and Bon Thomas and presidents of Altona service organisation.

A swinging band provided the music and the guest artist was opera singer, Junewyn Jones.

Guests were welcomed by the Mayor of Altona, Cr. Harry Weaver. Proceeds from the ball will go to the Altona District Hospital.

A heart is won

Altona Council has won the heart of a Newport West pensioner with its free library service.

In a letter of appreciation to council, Mrs. Lillia A. E. Withers of Newport West wrote:

"I am writing to thank you and your council for the privilege you have granted me and fellow pensioners in the use of your Circle Branch Library."

"I have notified Mrs. Proctor, secretary of the Combined Pensioners' Association, Williams-town, as several West Newport pensioners attend her meetings."

"She was impressed by your generous gesture. The use of your beautiful books will give me lasting happiness."

Clean sheet — and on pollution

For the first time in months, Altona Council has received no pollution complaints from ratepayers, for a fortnight.

Reporting to Tuesday night's council meeting, Senior Health Inspector, Mr. John Russell said no complaints concerning pollution or environment matters had been lodged with Council's Health Department during the past two weeks.

Mr. Russell told council air sampling had continued and the results of analysis had revealed no significant problems.

Teacher in council bid

Youth welfare is important to Mr. Laird Briggs, who will nominate for the Altona City Council elections next month.

Mr. Briggs (right) who has been a teacher at Altona North High School since 1967, wants council to employ a youth welfare - recreation officer in the district.

He will also press for more sporting facilities and better education facilities in Altona and wants to see a teachers' college built in the western suburbs.

Mr. Briggs, 30, is strongly opposed to high density housing projects such as the Paisley proposal.

Better transport services, particularly rail services and sewerage for all homes are also among the things he would fight for.

Students see 'Cupid'

More than 200 form one and two students from Altona High School attended the recent performance of Cupid in Transit by the Melbourne Theatre Company.

The production was staged in the Civic Hall on a Monday afternoon.

Altona High principal, Mr. F. McDonald said the Melbourne Theatre Company had a Government grant to tour schools to present plays which involved active student participation.

Invitation

Altona Mayor, Cr. Harry Weaver and councillors have been invited by the Williamstown Naval Dockyard management to attend the annual presentation of apprentice-ship awards in the dockyard cafeteria on Monday, July 23, at 2.30 p.m.

Different again are the Eye Tints — or special Recipe Eye Shadings. Ask for Mary Quant.

Your hands taking a beating lately? Water, detergents, cold and heat — that is some variety they endure!

Hand creams are essential — barrier creams are necessary — but have you thought of a combined hand and nail care creme?

A two-in-one treatment for your hands and nails. Coty give you a choice — Silken Creme is a penetrating, completely penetrating cream that protects hands from weather, water and harshness. It fortifies your growing nails if massaged in well and often.

The Mayor's Message: THE STORY OF CHERRY LAKE

By HARRY WEAVER, Mayor of Altona

Cherry Lake has been in the news for many years.

Before Altona City Council and the Board of Works combining to spend over $4 million on main drains in Altona, it was a real problem. Flood waters from Cherry Creek and overflow from Kororoit Creek (which incidentally extends into the Great Dividing Range near Macedon) used to overflow to parts of Altona. This was before the present levee bank was built.

No doubt, many residents recall as I do, when some years ago, Civic Parade was flooded to a depth of nine inches from Millers Road to Sargood Street. The Civic offices were being built and there was a foot of water around the building.

The lake used to be privately owned and at one stage a motor-racing circuit of about two and a half miles was constructed around it. A motor-racing promotion firm held two very successful meetings and attracted 10,000 spectators at each.

Unfortunately, at the last meeting a car driver was killed when his machine crashed and overturned into the waters of the lake.

The owners of the land then investigated the possible filling of the lake with a view to making it a housing estate. Earth was brought in from the deep sewers being constructed at Altona North and the Brooklyn area, but this idea was stopped because the Board of Works and the council decided that this should be a natural floodway and a retaining basin to stop flooding in Altona.

The Board of Works bought the land from the developer for more than $½ million.

Later, Altona Council bought eight acres on the southern side of the lake, adjoining the old Noor-denne Estate, for $52,000.

The area was bought for recreation and parkland purposes. Council still owns the land and has been progressively filling it and planting trees.

The Board of Works then put an overflow channel through Kim Reserve, at the back of Cambridge Street, to prevent local flooding.

Council has developed a beautification scheme around the lake and plans to make Cherry Lake like roads, thus retaining its natural beauty. Thousands of trees have been planted and recently schools participated in a tree-planting scheme on the northern side of the lake.

The trees on the northern side will create a natural buffer zone between industry and housing and the natural area which prevails on that side of the lake will provide cover for birds and wildlife generally.

Recently council introduced fish to the lake and reports from the Fisheries and Wildlife Department indicate that this is an excellent breeding ground.

It is pleasing to note the number of children and parents who use the lake for fishing.

Altona is one of the few areas where people have the good fortune to find such an excellent fishing and recreation area so close to their homes.

Several years ago, council was concerned that the lake may dry out and there were some dust problems, particularly in the Seaholme area. A bore and pump installed by council ensured that water would be maintained in the lake during drought periods, overcoming dust problems.

Council has opposed a suggestion made in the Board of Works planning proposals to have the area at the western end of the lake zoned for more residence and industry. Council believes this area with its natural cover for bird life should be zoned as a conservation area.

It has suggested to the Environment Protection Authority that the waters of the lake should be developed for yachting and canoeing purposes and that power boating should be excluded.

Present Board of Works regulations prohibit boating on the lake. Council recently put up fencing as part of a beautification scheme and more will be built in the near future.

We have in Cherry Lake, a natural resource which with proper planning and development will be a great asset to the municipality. Silhouettes and reflections on the lake have aroused the interest of many photographers.

Altona police could corner the automobile spare parts market . . .

. . . well, not really, but the petrol cap department could be given a big shake.

Altona police station is housing 19 stolen petrol caps.

A spokesman said anyone missing a cap is invited to pop in and see if it is among the collection.

Arrests have been made in the startling
petrol cap pinching case.

Youth is punched for 'no reason'

A youth riding his bicycle in Jack Street, Newport, was punched so hard in the face by an unknown
youth that he fell from the cycle.

He is Malcolm Lauder, 15, who is now being investigated by Footscray CIB.

Lauder told police he was riding his cycle in Jack Street when a youth about 15 ran, across the road and punched him in the face for no reason at all.

He fell from his cycle and the youth ran.

The assault was reported to Newport police and is now being investigated by Footscray CIB.

Detectives are anxious to interview a youth about 15, about 5 ft. tall, with black hair and a dark complexion. They say he is an Australian.

At the time of the attack he was wearing a black jumper with three stripes around it and blue jeans.

Household pollution

— And how to cope with it

We all expect that business companies should co-operate with the Environment Protection Authority in its fight against pollution. But although most attention is directed toward the company polluter, the actions and attitudes of individuals probably contribute just as much to Victoria's pollution problems. To help people realise just how much they can contribute to solving these problems, this Friday "The Age" will publish a special guide on household pollution and how to cope with it. Produced in collaboration with the Environment Protection Authority, this lift-out guide is the first of a series of authoritative features dealing with environmental problems. Cars, incinerators and burning of leaves, garden pesticides and insecticides, household litter and domestic garbage — these are all items which the householder can study more closely with a view to help clean up household pollution. The guide deals in depth with each of these areas and shows the dangers associated with many household systems for disposing of materials used every day. Householders can also make a special effort to reduce domestic noise pollution, and this lift-out guide also shows you how to recycle various household products which are used constantly — products such as paper, glass, clothing, metals and plastic. The guide also contains a large broad-sheet wall chart in color. It's an everyday guide to environmental management and shows clearly with pictures and words what your family can do to help the Environment Protection Authority improve Victoria's environment. This guide to household pollution and the color wall chart will be free with "The Age" on Friday.
